

Ray Stubbs

Ray has carved a successful career in sports broadcasting after playing professional football with Tranmere Rovers FC. He is the chief football reporter for BT Sport, hosts a show on Talksport, and was formerly working for ESPN presenting Premier League and Scottish Premier League matches.

Ray is an entertaining and highly engaging host and also an amusing after dinner speaker recounting his tales from the sporting world. He is a great fit for most events, bringing his charming wit and humour to any occasion.

Ray has covered several World Cups for BBC Sport as well as the European Championships in 2000 and 2004. Ray presented Score each week and was the regular presenter of the BBC's snooker and darts coverage. He also occasionally presented Match of the Day. In 2009, Ray left the BBC after 26 years to join ESPN. He presented the Premier League and Scottish Premier League matches on the satellite sports channel.

Since leaving ESPN he has worked as the BT Sport chief football commentator and hosted his show on Talksport.
